Art Unit: 1764

The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: the term "[sic]" appears in numerous places throughout the specification. The specification should be corrected and the term deleted.

Appropriate correction is required.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 16 and 19-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Vincent.

Vincent, U.S. Patent 5,431,831, teach an adhesive pipe sealant composition which comprises graphite, a polymerizable liquid acrylate ester monomer and a peroxy polymerization initiator (column 4, lines 4-9).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 16 and 19-22 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jacobs.

Jacobs, U.S. Patent 5,180,509, teaches metal-free lubricant compositions comprising graphite for use in threaded connections (column 1, lines 9-11). The composition of the invention also comprises a polymeric material which is chosen from polyalkylene polymers, preferably branched polyalkylenes. Suitable polymers include polyethylene, polypropylene and polybutylene (column 3, lines 34-40). Addition of a friction adjusting component chosen from, inter alia, a “substance which releases gases at elevated temperatures” (i.e., calcium carbonate, magnesium carbonate and zinc carbonate) is taught in column 3, line 65 to column 4, line 2.

While Jacobs differ from the instant claims in not requiring the addition of a carbonate additive, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill at the time the invention was made to follow the above teachings and arrive at the instantly claimed composition.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 16-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 16, the terms “curable or crosslinkable monomer, polymer or copolymer, physically setting polymer, or hydraulically setting inorganic substances” are indefinite. The claims fail to define the conditions under which the components are “curable,” “physically setting,” or “hydraulically setting.” While claims are interpreted in light of the disclosure, it is improper to read the limitations of the specification in to the claims.

Claim 16 includes numerous mis-named compounds.

In claim 16, the broadly claimed components a), b) and c) are not mutually exclusive and are not defined. For example, polyolefins are taught as a friction-reducing additive. Yet polyolefins are also taught as binders. Accordingly, claims 16-25 are indefinite.

Claim 24 is confusing, i.e., the recitation that component a) is selected from “polyolefins containing, in copolymerized form, units having functional groups, polyamides, saturated polyesters, poly(meth)acrylates and copolymers thereof” is confusing.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 16-25 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
